Democratizing Deliberation brings together recent and cutting-edge political theory scholarship on deliberative democracy. The collection reframes deliberative democracy to be sensitive to the deep conflicts, multiple forms of communication, and aspirations for civic agency that characterize real public deliberation. In so doing, the book addresses many of the most common challenges to the theory and practice of deliberative democracy.

“Democratizing Deliberation punctures the primary academic myths about public deliberation, and begins to reconcile deliberative theory with the more vigorous, diverse, emotional reality of deliberation in practice. . . . Essays by some of the top thinkers in the field explain the democratic turn in deliberative theory, making it an immensely useful volume for researchers and practitioners alike.”

Matthew Leighninger, Executive Director, Deliberative Democracy Consortium

“This book puts in one place seven gems from the literature on deliberative democracy and wraps them in a concise yet thorough genealogy of the concept. Presented in this way, the volume provides inspiration and knowledge that will nourish the practice of deliberative democracy in its wide variety of forms.”

Katherine Cramer Walsh, Associate Professor of Political Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison

“This excellent volume shows just how far deliberative democracy has come in the last generation. Above all, it is genuinely democratic—meaning accessible to all and tied to an inclusive public culture of civic action and collective self-rule. An illuminating set of essays by an impressive cast of theorists.”

Sharon Krause, Professor of Political Science, Brown University

Order this book and receive 20% OFF on orders received before 10/1/12.

Contact the Agency for Instructional Technology at 1-800-600-4060. You can also fax your order to 1-812-333-4218 or send an e-mail to info@ait.net.

Kettering Foundation Press

$15.95 • 184 pages

Higher education faculty and representatives of 501c3 organizations may be eligible for a review sample contact: kgang@kettering.org.

Visit the Kettering Foundation website at www.kettering.org.